Producer: Bodegas Valparaíso

Bodegas Valparaíso is located in Quintana del Pidio (Burgos), also known as the Garden of the Ribera del Duero, on a hill from which you can see the town and its old buildings. It has more than 70 hectares of its own vineyards, mostly Tempranillo (Tinta fina or Tinta del País), one from the early 20th century, planted in goblet and two from the beginning of the 21st century, on trellises. The old vineyard is close to the winery, in the same municipality of Quintana del Pidio, and the new vineyards are located in two perfectly delimited areas, the Pesquera vineyard (Valladolid) at 925m and the Sotillo vineyard (Burgos) at 825m. In the winery they have around 700 barrels of both French and American oak, and all of them are renewed annually.
